PHNOM PENH

On 23 November a flock of Asian Openbills was seen soaring over the scene of the lethal Koh Pich bridge stampede in Phnom Penh, with photos posted on a Khmer news website. As a result a rumour went around that a flock of vultures had attended the scene of the deaths. Several Zebra Doves were seen in various locations in central Phnom Penh during December (RvZ, TDE).

A birding trip at Boeng Pompey in the outskirts of town recorded 32 species on 27 December, including Barred Buttonquail and Baya Weavers (NE).

SOUTHEAST

The most exciting story of the period is undoubtedly the visit of Black-faced Spoonbill to Cambodia – the first record of this Endangered species (ACE). Online satellite tracking of birds originating from Korea (<https://sites.google.com/a/conservationecology.asia/en/home/tracking-bfsb>) shows that a group was wintering in southern Vietnam. One tagged bird – reportedly travelling in a group of three – entered Cambodia on 29 or 30 November, and flew straight to Takeo town, then moved to the southeast of the province, before crossing the border back into Vietnam on 4 December. The bird then hesitated between the two countries, but finally decided to settle in Cambodia. Since 7 January 2011 (and until the date of writing, i.e. end of the month), the bird stayed around Boeng Prek Lapeuv Sarus Crane Reserve although neither birders nor the local conservation team have seen or heard reports of this special host thus far!!

A visit on 30th December was unsuccessful in locating the spoonbills, although three large white birds spotted at dusk in a muddy field on the way back to Borey Cholsar flew off with extended necks. Over 200 Black-tailed Godwit and 20+ Garganeys on that day at Boeng Prek Lepeuw were of note (RO).

SOUTH-WEST

At Bokor NP, a Rufous-bellied Eagle was seen at the foothills on 1 November and a Black Eagle on the plateau on 20 November (RO; see photo); a male and female Mugimaki Flycatcher were photographed at the waterfall on 21 November (AJ).

Ten Lesser Frigatebirds were seen on the ferry crossing from Sihanoukville to Koh Rong Samloen on 19 November and five on the return trip on 21 November (HN).

On Koh Ta Kiev, near Ream National Park, on 21-22 November, nearly 20 migrant species were recorded in a few hours, including 5 Brown-rumped Minivets, an Eastern Crowned Warbler and a Sand Martin (Pale Martin not excluded) which is, surprisingly, the first record for the Southwest. Amongst the forest residents, the highlights were two Buffy Fish Owls and some Scaly-crowned Babblers (TDE).

December: 15 Great Knots – a second record for Cambodia (with the first made in the same area in 2007), and a Black-headed Gull, the first coastal record since 1996 (RO).

During 29-30 December the rice fields adjacent to Prey Nup mangroves held 6 Painted Storks, 10 Black-headed Ibis and 1 Lesser Adjutant, but in the mangroves themselves neither Ruddy Kingfisher nor Little Bronze Cuckoo responded to playback (TDE).

TONLE SAP / No records of note were received during this period.

NORTHWEST

One White-browed Crake and an aberrant grey-plumage Little Egret were noted on a visit to Ang Tropeang Thmor on 8 November (RO). In Siem Reap, a new House Sparrow colony was reported at Psar Kraom in December (MH).

A Birdlife/PACT survey in five Community Forests of Oddar Meanchey during November recorded 174 species. The presence of Green Peafowl and a single Black-necked Stork in Sorng Rokavorn, plus a single Greater Adjutant in Prey Srong were the most significant findings. White-rumped Falcon and Siamese Fireback were found at three and two sites respectively. A Rufous-bellied Woodpecker, a rarely recorded species, was seen at Sorng Rokavorn. On a distributional note, no less than 77 species were first recorded from this little known province. This included nine firsts for the northwest: Rufous-bellied Eagle, Brown Fish-Owl, Grey-headed Woodpecker, Hooded Pitta, Asian Stubtail (6th national record), Eastern Crowned Warbler, Lesser Necklaced Laughingthrush, Plain Flowerpecker (10th record) and Fire-breasted Flowerpecker (nominate subspecies). Rosy Minivet (nominate form) found in Sorng Rokavorn is only the 7th country record. Last but not least, “Blyth's-type” Leaf Warbler and Buff-throated Warbler were first records for Cambodia (all FL and VE).

NORTH

An SVC bird tour group visiting Tmatboey photographed a male Dusky Thrush on 17 November (DN, MM, TF, KW, see photo). This is a rather unexpected first for Cambodia, as the nearest records are from northwest Thailand (Robson 2008).

Masked Finfoots (probably two different individuals) were caught by camera traps at two well-separated locations along the Stoung Memay, Kulen Promtep Wildlife Sanctuary on 20 and 27 November (per RV).

A Common Kestrel was again seen at Preah Vihear temple on 25 December (AJ; see photo), the first confirmed record for the northern plains after the sighting of a kestrel sp. at the same site in October.

Photos of Puff-throated Bulbul were taken at O'Koki on 9 December (AJ) and their identity was confirmed by Craig Robson. This makes past claims from this area of the sister species, Ochraceous Bulbul, increasingly unlikely.

NORTH-EAST

A visit to Seima Protection Forest during 19-22 November found about 20 Ashy-headed Green-Pigeons (the largest flock recorded in Cambodia) and an unseasonal Hooded Pitta (RvZ). A Pale Blue Flycatcher on 28 and 30 November near the km 164 station (SVC team per HN) could actually be the first for Cambodia – the fifth case within a single month! - as the reviewers could not trace any confirmed record despite it being mentioned in Robson's guide 2000 and 2008 edition.

Two White-shouldered Ibis were seen on 19 November at the Se San vulture restaurant in Stung Treng. In addition, 11 active vulture nests (4 Red-headed and 7 White-rumped) were found across four sites in the Northern Plains, Western Siem Pang and the Eastern Plains during November (all per SC).
